

My husband and I are over the road truckers and we depend on these channels when we are working. It lets us know when there is bad weather and traffic tie ups in the cities that we are traveling. Since XM is a subscription service I do not believe that the NAB has a right to tell XM what it can and can not broadcast on it. When they start paying the price for the subscribers then it may do so. Until then they need to just mind their own stations. Sincerely yours, Linda Strait
